DETAILED ACTION

Specification

- Claim 1 is objected to because of the following informalities: On lines 10-11, wherein, "means supplying", should be changed to, "means for supplying".
- Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

- The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

- Claims 1,3,9 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bobrow et al. (US 6,562,077 B2).

Regarding claim 1, Bobrow et al., disclose: means for supplying a multi-level digital representation of the image (Please note Abstract of the invention, lines 5-9. As indicated the document search system initially segments document images into one or more layout objects. Each layout object identifies a structural element in a document such as text blocks, graphics, or halftones. Herein, it's evident that these text blocks, graphics or halftones are of multi-level representation of the image); means for identifying predetermined objects in the image and supplying data defining their locations (Please note Abstract of the invention, lines 9-14. As indicated the document search system computes a set of attributes for each of the identified layout objects. The set of attributes are used to describe the layout structure of a page image of a document in terms of the spatial relations that layout objects have to frames of reference that are defined by other layout objects. Herein it's evident that these set of attributes identify the location of the predetermined objects, that is the identified layout objects); means for deriving segmentation data from the multi-level digital representation (Please note the Abstract of the invention, lines 16-20. As indicated after receiving a feature or attribute and a set of document images selected by a user, the system forms a set of image segments by identifying those layout objects in the set of document images that make up the selected feature or attribute); means for combining the data defining the locations of objects with the said segmentation data (Please note Abstract of the invention lines 20-22. As indicated the system sorts the set of image segments into meaningful groupings of objects which have similarities and/or recurring patterns); means for clustering the predetermined objects into groups for each segmented region (Please note, figure 18, in correlation to column 31, lines 8-10. As indicated clusters of document images are formed by ranking their distance measurements) and means for supplying data relating to the groups for subsequent analysis (Please note, column 31, lines 10-15. As indicated the features selected for each document image in the selected set of document images are displayed according to the clusters of features which have been ranked by similarity to the feature of the selected at earlier step. It is clear that this displaying criteria is a form of analysis) .

Regarding claim 3, Bobrow et al., disclose, wherein the objects are text objects (Please note, column 30, line 31. As indicated the document name is specified in text field).

Regarding claims 9 and 11, arguments analogous to those presented for claims 1 and 3, respectively, are applicable.

Allowable Subject Matter

- Claims 2, 4-8, 10 and 12-14 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
- The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: None of the prior art disclose or fairly suggest wherein having a second segmentation means receiving the multi-level representation of the image and the data identifying the locations of the objects in the image to derive segmentation data relating to difference in the data of the multi-level representation from the said objects, and wherein the segmenting means receives this segmentation data and further segments the data defining locations of object image in dependence on this segmentation data.
